

Go to Sleep, Groundhog!

by Judy Cox

Read by Susie Berneis

Illustrated by Paul Meisel

"...a charming answer to the scarcity of engaging material on Groundhog Day." - Booklist

Poor Groundhog just can't sleep. He tosses. He turns. Finally, he gets out of bed and goes exploring. Outside his burrow he finds amazing sights he has never seen before: glowing jack-o'-lanterns, gobbling turkeys, and sparkling holiday lights. But shouldn't Groundhog be in bed? With no sleep how will he be able to get up for his big day?

AUTHOR

Judy Cox was born in San Francisco. She is the oldest of five children and enjoyed telling stories from an early age. She is a reading teacher at a small rural school and is inspired to write children's books by her own love of good literature, by raising her son, and by teaching her students.

READ BY

Susie Berneis is a versatile voiceover artist with numerous narration credits to her name. She has an ear for dialect and a love for the process of developing characters, which has been cultivated through her twenty-plus years of experience as a community and regional stage actress. Based in Ann Arbor (home of the University of Michigan, where she received her BA in English and theatre), she now takes great joy in playing all the characters she encounters in her narration.

Illustrator

Paul Meisel has illustrated many popular books for children, including Trick or Treat? by Bill Martin Jr.; How to Talk to Your Cat by Jean Craighead George; and A Cake All for Me! by Karen Beil. On February 2 he is looking out for Connecticut groundhogs.
